A Bridge of Ants

A species of ants which spin silk is common in hot countries. The ants nest in trees, binding the leaves together to make their nests. The silk used for this purpose is not secreted by the adult ants, but by the larvae. In order to attach the silken threads and draw the leaves together the ants must carry the larvae about from one leaf to another. When two distant leaves are to be drawn together a remarkable method is employed. Five or six ants form a chain bridging the gap between the leaves in its mandibles. A number of such chains will co-operate in bringing two leaves together.

Gentle Reminder

It was midnight. The man had entered the house as quietly as possible. His shoes made some noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard some one moving in the bed as if about to get up, and he paused. The sound of a woman's voice floated to his ears.

If you don't take your boots off when you come into this house, it said, there's going to be trouble, and a whole lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and you dare to tramp over my carpets with your muddy boots on! Go downstairs and take them off this minute!

He went downstairs without a word, but he didn't take off his boots. Instead he went straight out into the night again, and the pal who was waiting for him saw a tear glisten in his eye.

I can't rob that house, he said. It reminds me of home.

AN OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Was Ordered by His Doctor, But Complete Cure Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels.

Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

Mr. Alexander commenced and ended his seafaring career in vessels named Oceanic.

No More Asthma. Dr. J. D. Kelllogg's Asthma Remedy sounds the death knell of this trying trouble. It stops the awful choking and painful breathing. It guards against night attacks and gives renewed ability to sleep and rest the whole night long. Much is claimed for this remedy, but nothing but what can be demonstrated by a trial. If you suffer from asthma try it and convince yourself of its great value.

Pictures to Teach Farmers

The Department of Agriculture for Ontario is nothing if not wide awake. Thanks to its activities, the quality of agriculture in the province during the last decade has substantially improved, as official figures show. Learning that the moving picture machine was being utilized elsewhere for agricultural demonstration work, the officials of the Department have been studying the possibilities of the cinematograph for the extension of their own work. It is believed that moving pictures would be particularly valuable at the lectures which for some time have been an attractive feature of the farmers' institutes.

A Household Remedy

Why the Burglar laughed

One of the most interesting collections of burglars' tools is that possessed by Canon Horsley, rector of St. Peter's, Walworth, England, who years ago was chaplain at Clerkenwell and Pentonville. A short time ago he took to a bazaar a big assortment of skeleton keys, jemmyes, crowbars, and a photograph of Charles Peace, once a member of his congregation. The canon is an authority on burglaries, and tells a good story of a burglar who used to carry pieces of doctored liver for silencing dogs. One night he entered a house, saw a dog's staring eyes in the hall, and at once produced the liver. The animal did not move and on close inspection the burglar discovered that the dog was stuffed. Here is a joke! he thought and laughed so uproariously that the members of the household awoke and he was caught.

These Pills Cure Rheumatism.—To the many who suffer from rheumatism a trial of Parmedee's Vegetable Pills is recommended. They have pronounced action upon the liver and kidneys and by regulating the action of these organs act as an alternative in preventing the admixture of uric acid and blood that causes this painful disorder. They must be taken according to directions and used steadily and they will speedily give evidence of their beneficial effects.

A Legend of Lace

According to Melchior de Vogue, the legend of lace is as follows: A Venetian sailor gave his ladylove a frond of seaweed to keep him in memory while at sea. But the girl found that the seaweed was rapidly drying up and disappearing. So she caught the fine branches and leaves of the plant with thread against a piece of linen and, working on, with her thoughts following her lover, invented lace.

THERE used to be a by-law governing the use of firearms in the town limits. If it is still in existence it must have gotten so deeply hidden amongst other town documents that those in authority have lost track of it. They had better dig it up and take proceedings against the rowdies who again made the night hideous with the discharge of firearms on Monday night. This is the third time within a few weeks that the residents in the centre of the town have been disturbed in the middle of the night by a gang of hoodlums with firearms who have no thought for other peoples comfort or the suffering caused to the sick by their actions. It is the duty of those in authority to see that the ringleaders of these disturbances are made to realize that they have no license to cause such disturbance, and the public also expect them to enforce the law.

DIDSBURY along with other cities and towns in Alberta has to suffer from the withdrawal of the license fees received from the hotels. A paternal government has decided that they need the money, consequently the rat-payer has to dig down further into his pocket to pay for protection from a business which is protected by the government and which is the cause of the expenditure of some hundreds of dollars every year by the town for the preservation of law and order. Yes, Mr. Taxpayer, your taxes are high enough but provision will have to be made to meet the loss of this little revenue consequently your taxes will have to be raised a little more next year to meet the cost of such protection.

Distribution of Seed Grain and Potatoes

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers.
The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (5 lbs.); white oats (4 lbs.); barley (5 lbs.) and field peas (5 lbs). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant.

Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm.
Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted. If two or more samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early; but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cereals Station, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed a relay and disappointment may occur.

Applications, for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

CHAPTER IV
Little Miss Jane

What did you do with that bag? demanded the man with the gun, and I felt his knee on my chest.

What bag? I enquired feebly.

Don't be a fool, he persisted. If I don't get that bag within five minutes I'll fill you as full of holes as a cheese.

I haven't seen any bag, I said stupidly. What sort of a bag? I heard my own voice, drunk from the shock. Paper bag, laundry bag—

You've hidden it in the house, he said, bringing the revolver a little closer with every word.

Go in and look, I responded. I do not know anything about a bag, but if you will give me your word there was nothing in it belonging to this house I will take you in and let you look for it.

The next moment he had lowered the revolver and clutched my arm.

Who in the devil's name are you? he asked wildly.

I think the thing dawned on us both at the same moment.

My name is Knox, I said coolly—John Knox.

Knox! He snatched the candle from me and, holding it up, searched my face. Then good God—where is my travelling bag? I am Harry Wardrop, and I have been robbed, Mr. Knox. I was trying to get in the house without waking the family, and when I came back here to the front door, where I had left my valise, it was gone. I thought you were the thief when you came out, and—we've lost all this time. Somebody has followed me and robbed me!

What was in the bag? I asked.

Valuable papers, he said shortly. You are certain you left it here?

Where you are standing.

Something glistened beside the step, and I discovered a small brown leather travelling bag, apparently quite new.

Here it is, I said, not so gracious as I might have been. I had suffered considerably for that travelling bag. The sight of it restored Wardrop's poise.

By jove, I am glad to see it, he said. I can't explain, but tremendous things were depending on that bag, Mr. Knox. I don't know how to apologize to you for I must have nearly brained you.

You did, I said grimly, and gave him the bag. The moment he took it I knew there was something wrong. He hurried into the house and lighted the library lamp. Then he opened the travelling bag with shaking fingers. It was empty!

It's a trick, he said furiously. You've hidden it somewhere. This is not my bag. You've substituted one just like it.

Don't be a fool, I retorted. How could I substitute an empty satchel for yours when up to fifteen minutes ago I had never seen you or your grip either.

He dropped into a chair, and after a pause I was followed in. Plattsburg. Two men watched me from the minute I got there on Tuesday. I changed my hotel, and all of yesterday—Wednesday, that is—I felt secure enough. But on the way to the train I felt that I was under surveillance again, and by turning quickly I came face to face with one of the men. I thought he was a detective. You know I've had a lot of that sort of thing lately, with election coming on. He didn't get on the train, however.

But the other one may have done so.

When we drew in at Bellwood station I distinctly remember opening the bag and putting my newspaper and railroad schedule inside. It was the right bag then. My clothing was in it and my brushes.

I had been examining the empty bag as he talked.

Where did you put your railroad schedule? I asked.

In the leather pocket at the side. It is here, I said, drawing out the yellow folder. For a moment my companion looked almost haunted.

The whole thing is impossible. That valise was heavy when I walked up from the station. I changed it from one hand to the other because of the weight. When I got there I set it down on the edge of the porch and tried the door. When I found it locked.

But it wasn't locked, I broke in. When I came downstairs to look for a burglar I found it open at least an inch.

He stopped in his pacing up and down and looked at me curiously.

We're both crazy, then, he asserted gravely. I tell you I tried every way I knew to unlock that door and could hear the chain rattling. Undoubtedly you are ignorant of the way this house is fastened up at night.

Nevertheless it was unlocked when I came down.

The sound of a smothered exclamation from the doorway caused us both to turn suddenly. Standing there in a loose gown of some sort, very much surprised and startled, was Margery Fleming.

What is the matter, she asked uncertainly. I heard such queer noises. Mr. Wardrop was trying to break in, I explained, and I came down. On the way I had a bloody encounter with an open door.

I don't think she quite believed me. She looked from my swollen head to the open bag and then to Wardrop's pale face. Then I think, womanlike, she remembered the two great braids that hung over her shoulders and the dressing gown she wore, for she backed precipitately into the hall.

It is only half past two, I said, glancing at my watch. We might look around outside.

Reluctant as he was, his feverish excitement made me think that some thing vital hung on the recovery of the contents of that Russia leather bag. But we found nothing.

As I look back on that night the key to what had passed and to much that was coming was so simple, so directly and yet we missed it entirely. It was some time before we learned the true inwardness of the events of that night.

I was almost unrecognizable when I looked at myself in the mirror the next morning, preparatory to dressing for breakfast. My nose boasted a new arch like the back of an angry cat, making my profile Roman and ferocious, and the lump on my forehead from the chair was swollen, glassy and purple. I turned my back to the mirror and dressed in wrathful irritation and my yesterday's linen.

Miss Fleming was in the breakfast room. I have carried with me during all the months since that time a mental picture of her as she stood there in a pink morning frock of some sort. But only the other day, having mentioned this to her, she assured me that the frock was blue. So I amend this Miss Fleming in a blue frock was facing the door when I went into the breakfast room. Of one thing I am certain, she held out her hand. Good morning, she said. What a terrible face.

It isn't mine, I replied meekly. My own face is beneath these excruciations I tried to cover the bump on my forehead with French chalk, but it only accentuated the thing, like snow on a mountain top.

The purple peaks of Darien, she quoted, pouring me my coffee. Do you know, I feel so much better since you have taken hold of things. Aunt Letitia thinks you are wonderful.

I thought ruefully of the failure of my first attempt to play the sleuth, and I disclaimed any right to Miss Letitia's high opinion of me.

Before any one comes down, Miss Fleming, I said. I want to ask a question or two. What was the name of the maid who helped you search the house that night?

Annie.

What other maids did you say there were?

Della and Rose.

Do you know anything about them? Where they came from or where they went?

She smiled a little.

Stomach, Nerves and Thinner Restored by Grape-Nuts Food

The number of persons whose ailments were such that no other food could be retained at all, is large and reports are on the increase.

"For 12 years I suffered from dyspepsia, finding no food that did not distress me," writes a Wis. lady. "I was reduced from 145 to 90 lbs., gradually growing weaker until I could leave my bed only a short while at a time, and became unable to speak aloud."

"Three years ago I was attracted by an article on Grape-Nuts and decided to try it."

"My stomach was so weak I could not take cream, but I used Grape-Nuts with milk and lime water. It helped me from the first, building up my system in a manner most astonishing to the friends who had thought my recovery impossible."

"Soon I was able to take Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast and lunch at night, with an egg and Grape-Nuts for dinner."

"I am now able to eat fruit, meat and nearly all vegetables for dinner, but fondly continue Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper."

"At the time of beginning Grape-Nuts I could scarcely speak a sentence without changing words around or 'talking crooked' in some way but I have become so strengthened that I no longer have that trouble."

Nothing could be more thorough or desirable than their action.

LET the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his strength will soon fail. One's stamina—forcefulness and strength of mind or muscle depend upon the blood, and the blood in turn, requires a healthy stomach, for the stomach is the laboratory where the food is digested and such elements are taken up—or assimilated—which make blood. In consequence all the organs of the body, such as heart, lungs, liver and kidneys, as well as the nervous system, feel the bad effect if the stomach is deranged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

helps the stomach to digest food properly, starts the liver into new activity, removing the poisons from the blood, and the various organs get rich, red blood, instead of being ill nourished. WHAT PAULINE LEARNED

She Was an Apt Pupil

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Waving aside an obsequious attendant Pauline Fenn passed between rows of glass inclosed desks to her father's private office. She tapped before opening the heavy door and found him sitting in grave meditation before a wood fire on the hearth.

He turned his head as his youngest daughter entered and sat down in the opposite chair.

"I've done it at last, father," she said, rather breathlessly.

"Done what?" he asked in a startled tone.

"Broken my engagement to Roger." "My dear!" He jumped up and paced the floor thoughtfully, now and then his keen eyes searching her young face. "Are you wise?"

HE VOWED REVENGE WHEN SHE SHOULD BECOME HIS COUNTESS.

"It is best."

"I thought you were fond of Roger—loved him, in fact?"

"I did." She was speaking nervously now. "But you know he is in no position to marry now; the doctor has ordered him to go west and live in the open for five years, otherwise he predicts a total nervous breakdown. I had a note from him this morning. He has sold his seat on the exchange and is going to buy a ranch in Montana. He wanted me to marry him at once and go with him."

"And you have seen him?"

"I went to his office. I told him what you said—that if he must give up business, why, you would back him with money to any extent and when we were married we could live in the same style to which I am accustomed. I could go with the same people and enjoy the same amusements of my set. I simply couldn't give up all those things and sort of grub along, now, could I, father?"

He frowned thoughtfully.

"I thought you could, Polly, but it seems I am mistaken. Roger Dale went into Wall street when he was nineteen. For fifteen years he has worked like a steam engine, but the engine has been overworked; it is a fine piece of mechanism, and if it continues to work without rest and repair, why, it will go snap some day and one of the cleanest and squarest men I know will spend the remainder of his days in the madhouse."

"Father!"

"Ah! That is the plain truth. I had Roger here yesterday and offered to do anything for him that money and friendship can do; he was engaged to my daughter and I wanted to help him for that reason, as well as because I admire his pluck. He refused point blank to accept any help. Said the sale of his exchange seat would set him up on a paying sheep ranch in the west, and he also declared that he had an old fashioned notion that he wanted to provide a home for his wife with his own hands."

Pauline was silent for a moment. Her cheeks were burning now.

"But mother would be broken hearted if I married Roger now and went on to a ranch. It is a primitive life at the best, and I would be shut out of the society of my friends, and the other girls would be so mortified. They have married so well, you know. Mother never did approve of my engagement to Roger," she explained hurriedly.

"No, she did not approve of it," he returned coldly. "Your mother and I began life humbly; your mother worked in a millinery store and never had a pair of kid gloves until she was married. Now she has married three of her daughters to penniless but titled foreigners, and the fourth she withholds from an honest American. I should think two countesses and a princess quite enough glory for one plain American family to acquire and quite all I can afford," he added grimly.

"I thought you'd be rather glad," said Pauline uneasily as she arose to go. "Under the circumstances, I wonder if you care if I go abroad with Helen."

"Just as you please, Polly," he said sadly. "All I live for is to make you happy."

When he was alone John Fenn drew his chair to the hearth and gazed long into the fire of apple tree wood. A close observer might have noticed that something very like tears glittered in his fine blue eyes.

Six months afterward Pauline Fenn stood on the steamer at Southampton and watched the passengers coming aboard for the homeward voyage. Her lovely face was a trifle thinner and there was an air of restlessness about her that disconcerted the dark little monkey-like man who stood at her elbow, chattering.

"Mademoiselle, ah, yes, tees a gay scene—like Cherbourg—but England sees what you call tame, dead!"

"Do you think so, count?" murmured Pauline indifferently.

"Hal! There is no country like France, no city like Paris!"

"You have never seen America or New York," said Pauline over her shoulder.

"I go the happiest of men now to interview mademoiselle's papa," grinned the count delightedly, for it was quite true that Pauline's sister, the Countess de Laon, had arranged a match between her beautiful sister and a money hunting little patrician, Count Servan Lagres. Helen was accompanying her sister to New York, and Lagres had taken passage on the same steamer.

She tried not to regret the step she had taken in breaking her engagement, but every hour of her stay abroad had been spent to the accompaniment of burning remorse and useless regret. She had not given her promise to Lagres. She had not even encouraged him, but Helen was pushing the affair in her high handed way, and Pauline was meekly being led. She blushed when she thought of what her father would say when he saw this fourth foreigner presented as a possible son-in-law.

"Mademoiselle is weary. Come and sit down and I will send a cup of tea," twittered the count at her elbow.

"Please go away!" cried Pauline crossly.

Pauline moved slowly along the rail until she could look down upon a little group of second cabin passengers.

Two were separated from the others, a pale, anaemic looking man and a little pink and white roly poly woman. The woman was speaking despairingly.

"George, I don't know 'ow it 'appened; I 'ad the purse sewed tight in my skirt and now it's gone, every shilling that I've scraped and saved for this 'oin'!" Her voice broke suddenly and the man's thin hand gripped her shoulder.

"Cheer up, Sally, old girl; maybe Joe 'll 'elp us out; 'e promised to meet us, you know."

One day during the voyage Pauline found them out and heard their story. It was a simple one. They had been engaged for many years. George Marston was butler and Sally was upper housemaid in the same noble family. George's health had deserted him, and a brother in Canada had offered him land on which to build a home and plenty of work if he would come to the northwest.

When Pauline left them they were riotously happy. Her generous pocketbook had replaced the contents of Sally's wallet, and they were to repay her when they could. They were independent.

The remainder of the voyage Pauline went about with shining eyes. Helen could not understand the new mood, and the count broke through his conventionalities and proposed outright and was refused.

He proposed again and was refused, and yet again with kindly but monotonous regularity. When they reached quarantine he borrowed funds from Helen and morosely decided to take the next boat home without that important interview with John Fenn.

Roger Gale stood on the veranda of his ranch house and looked away over the slopes where his sheep were crowded, huddled flocks of dusty gray against the green grass. From the flocks and the rippling hills his eyes turned to the winding trail that led from town.

A light buckboard was approaching the ranch, and he saw that while the oult was his own and one of his men was driving there were two passengers in the rear seat. One was a titled looking man; the other was a girl dressed in blue. Now, Roger Dale was not in the habit of receiving girl visitors, and his interest was quickened at the sight of the newcomers. He stepped into the house to make anxious inquiries of the Chinese cook.

When he passed through his sitting room to the front porch Pauline Fenn was standing there looking at him with wet, wistful eyes.

"Polly!" he cried, with unbelieving eyes.

She nodded. "Roger, I have come. Father came with me. I cannot be happy without you. I want to be a rancher's wife!" She never finished her confession, for Roger's arms were around her and his bronzed cheek was against hers.

"You are sure, sure you won't regret it, love?" he asked over and over again. And Pauline clung closer to him and whispered softly what George and Sally had awakened in her heart.

"I won't regret anything so long as we are together," she said.

ARMORER'S TOOLS.

Fine Relics of Ancient Times in New York's Art Museum.

Very few people are aware that in the heart of modern New York is a complete armorer's shop, writes D. A. Suverkrop in the American Machinist. It is in the basement of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and is equipped with a complete outfit of over 600 armorer's tools. Many of these are very old, having descended from master to man or from father to son through many generations. Their workmanship is excellent. Where steel faces have been welded to iron bodies the welds are clean and perfect, and the junction of iron and steel is distinguishable only by the difference in luster of the two metals.

The tempering of the steel faces seems to be good and uniform, as neither cracks nor dents are apparent. A cursory glance at these tools will at once apprise us of the origin of many of our modern sheet metal workers' implements. The working faces of all the tools are highly polished, so that they do not "grk" the metal being worked, which it is free to "slide" to the shape desired by the armorer.

Every collection of ancient armor requires technical care for its upkeep. The objects must be kept free from rust, occasionally remounted, and from time to time restorations must be made to preserve these priceless specimens. In order to carry out this work the museum has arranged the shop referred to so that these necessary operations may be carried on. The armorer's tools once belonged to Daniel Tachaux, but are now the property of the museum. Mr. Tachaux brought them to this country when he came from Paris in 1909 to make some repairs in the museum's collection of armor. The outfit consists of over 600 tools and includes nearly 100 kinds of stakes and a great variety of hammers, swages, etc.

RECESSION OF GLACIERS.

Northern Ice Fields That Once Met the Sea Are Now Inland.

Some attention is being directed to the fact that the Muir glacier is disintegrating along its face, and there is some speculation as to how long it will continue to present a great attraction to tourists. No one can answer this, of course, for the causes of the unusual movement are not known. Neither is it known with any certainty for how long a time this great ice mass has presented his appearance, which made it famous.

Assuming that the earliest charts of the coast are correct—and there is every reason to suppose they are—there have been very remarkable recessions of glaciers along the Atlantic coast during the last century, so that ice fields that formerly came down to the sea are now a considerable distance from it. As we understand, the earlier charts do not indicate the position of Muir glacier, so there are no means of telling if it has receded.

The cause of the recession of glaciers is not fully understood, but it seems to imply an average amelioration of the climate. Glaciers are fed from snow fields, and if they become smaller only one of two explanations seems possible. Either the snowfall in the higher levels must have diminished or the temperature in the lower levels has grown higher. There are several reasons for supposing that the climate of the north Pacific zone is becoming gradually warmer, although the change is very gradual. Sir Charles Lyell, the famous geologist, in one of his books speaks of the breaking away of a great ice barrier near Greenland, which occurred, if we are not mistaken, in 1846, and says it was one of the most significant events in the modern history of the world.—Victoria Colonist.

A man once arrived at Kansas City with a terrible pain under his belt. "Go for a doctor," said the sufferer, "and go quickly."

A Mixed Quartet.

Among other curious things I have heard was a quartet sung simultaneously in four languages, writes a reminiscent contributor to the New York Sun. It was Clara Louise Kellogg's company in "Martha." Miss Kellogg sang in English, Brignoli in Italian, a German woman in German and a Frenchman in French. The audience never noticed the confusion of tongues.

HERE AND HEREAFTER

SIR OLIVER LODGE ANNOUNCES CERTAINTY OF IMMORTALITY.

Celebrated British Scientist After Applying the Most Rigid Tests to Spiritistic Phenomena For Many Years Has Arrived at the Conclusion That Their Reality Is Beyond Question.

It will be remembered that W. A. Stead, heroic victim of the Titanic disaster, welcome acquaintance of kings and emperors and others in the seats of the mighty, and probably the most noted journalist in the world, was a firm believer in psychic communication with the world of the hereafter. When preparing to face death, he reiterated that belief and spoke of joining his previously deceased son, from whom he had stated, verbally and in carefully prepared printed volumes, he had received numerous messages from the spirit world through the medium of an inhabitant of that region whom he knew as "Julia."

SIR OLIVER LODGE.

Science has now taken a decided hand in this problem, debated and debatable from the beginning of sentient existence, in a recent statement of the famous Englishman, Sir Oliver Lodge, admittedly the best all-round scientist in the world at the present time. He is president of the British Association, the most authoritative scientific body on earth, and he has announced that in his presidential address on September 10, he will offer complete evidence to show "an ultimate continuity of existence before and after death as essential to science," which, if accepted, will be a distinct alignment of the most advanced scientific thought on the side of immortality. Sir Oliver already has asserted that "the boundary between the two states—the known and the unknown, life and death—is wearing thin in places, and excavators are engaged in boring a tunnel from opposite ends. We are beginning to hear now and then strokes from the pickaxes of our comrades on the other side."

Sir Oliver Lodge has been a close and skeptical student of psychical phenomena for many years, and after long and patient observance of the famous Italian psychic, Eusapia Paladino, was forced to admit that "any person without invincible prejudice, who had the same experiences, would come to the same broad conclusion, namely, that things heretofore held impossible do actually occur. . . . The result of my experience is to convince me that certain phenomena considered supernatural do belong to the order of nature."

It is evident that the world is soon to witness the proclamation of another accession to the natural laws which govern its place in the universe, and one likely to arouse spirited religious and scientific discussion.

To Make Coal Mining Safe.

One of the simplest of the many suggested tests for fire-damp in mines is that described by Henry Briggs to the Scottish Society of Arts. It is an attachment that may be applied to any oil or spirit safety lamp, and consists of a loop of copper wire supported on a brass rod passing through the oil vessel. To make a test the loop is moved into the flame. This becomes instantly non-luminous, but if fire-damp is present in the air the gas-cap is clearly seen. The test can be made in a moment at any time, without turning down or putting out the light.

It is claimed that the percentage of fire-damp this method will detect is exceedingly small, and the results of trials on both laboratory and mine go to show that this is one of the most sensitive, accurate, and expeditious means of revealing the presence of inflammable gas in mine or other air. —Bolton Journal.

Just Think of It

A FOUR HUNDRED DOLLAR UPTON
GRAND PIANO ABSOLUTELY
GIVEN AWAY

That advertising is now a science is again demonstrated practically to the buying public of this section by the wonderful advertising system now employed by the most enterprising business house of Studer & Co., who are going to give away absolutely free to someone of their customers on May 1st, 1914, the beautiful Upton Parlor Grand Piano which is now on exhibition at their store. The piano sells for four hundred dollars and is a high class instrument in every respect, guaranteed by the makers for ten years. Just think of it! A four hundred dollar piano to be given away! A few years ago, if a merchant was to do such a thing he would be considered a fit subject for an asylum, but conditions have changed, yet in the face of the enormous sum spent in advertising the fact of Studer & Co. giving away a $400.00 piano is a stupendous undertaking and it clearly demonstrates their desire to be "always up to and a little ahead" of the spirit of the times.

Every purchaser of $1.00 worth of goods from any department of their store will receive a coupon good for 100 votes on the piano. The person presenting the largest number of votes to them on May 1st, 1914 will receive the piano absolutely free. No favors will be shown and every person will receive an equal chance. The reputation enjoyed by Studer & Co. for "square dealing" insures this fact. We think the buying people will appreciate this extremely liberal offer on the part of Studer & Co., and we predict a lively scramble for votes.

Maniac Shoots Two End Life

The town of Leduc, 20 miles south of Edmonton was startled, early Saturday morning by a shooting affair. Mrs. Flood, wife of one of Leduc's most prominent citizens, was shot three times by a hired man, named Grant, who also shot a twelve-year-old girl of the family and attacked the other children with the butt end of a 22 caliber rifle.

Grant, who was a swede, after firing the buildings, shot himself through the head, dying instantly. The shooting occurred about 4.30 o'clock Saturday morning.

It is believed that Mrs. Flood and the children will all recover. Mr. Flood was in Edmonton south for the night and was rushed home in an auto upon hearing the news. Apparently only the small caliber of the weapon used by Grant saved the life of Mrs. Flood and the children. Three shots were fired at the woman at close range, as was also the case in the attack on the eldest girl. After clubbing the other three children with the butt end of the rifle, Grant, leaving his victims lying on the floor of the house, went to the stable which he fired, burning it to the ground. Valuable livestock and farm equipment were destroyed in the fire. An attempt was also made to burn the house, but for some reason the flames died out before any damage was done.

Grant was discovered on Saturday morning dead beside a hay stack with a bullet hole through his head. It is believed the man was insane. He had been engaged for some time with Mr. Flood and was believed to be a capital and reliable employee. The Flood farm is about one mile south of Leduc.

COAL IN CANADA

Huge Deposits of the Valuable Mineral in Many Parts of the Great West

Coal is by far the most important product of the Canadian mines, as the value of the yearly output of coals and lignites reaches thirty-five per cent. of the total value of the country's mineral production.

Coal is abundant and extensively worked on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and its occurrence greatly facilitates over-sea trade and local traffic on both oceans.

Canada's production of coal in 1908 reached nearly 11,000,000 tons; whereas in 1866 it was only slightly over 2,000,000 tons. This is a very significant fact, for to a great extent, the consumption and production of coal furnishes a measure by which to judge of the development of a country. In this connection it must be remembered that Canada consumes about as much imported coal as it does of domestic product.

In British Columbia, extensive coalfields are found and worked on Vancouver Island, also in the interior of the province, on the Nicola valley, as well as in the Crow's Nest region, East Kootenay. All these coals are of high grade bituminous quality. Unworked deposits of high quality are known in the Queen Charlotte Islands; in the Skeena region; and in the Similkameen district. These constitute valuable reserves.

In Alberta there are also vast deposits of fossil fuels of all quantities, from anthracite—which is extensively worked near Banff—to lignites. High grade bituminous coals occur along the lines of the Crow's Nest Railway; along the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Good lignites are of very widespread occurrence and there are very extensive areas of untouched coalfields all along the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains.

In the southeastern part of Saskatchewan the deposits of lignite in the Sour's River region are being actively worked.

In the provinces of Ontario and Quebec there are no known coal-bearing rocks, and the greater part of the coal consumed in these provinces is imported from the United States.

From the Nova Scotia fields is produced about three-fifths of Canada's total coal production. The main centres of production are in Cape Breton, in Cumberland, in Pictou and in Inverness counties. In all of which are very extensive collieries.

In 1908 the total Canadian production of 11,000,000 tons, Nova Scotia contributed 7,000,000 tons.

Government Desires to Co-operate With Christians and Christians

Upon the invitation of the Minister of Home Affairs, and the evident approval of the members of the Japanese Cabinet, a conference of representatives of Shinto, Buddhism and Christianity was recently held in Tokyo. All the thirteen Shintoists were represented, as well as twenty or more Buddhist sects. The seven Christians, among whom was the Rev. Dr. Motoda, headmaster of St. Paul's College, Tokyo, represented the Baptists, the Congregationalists, Episcopalians, the Greek Church, the Methodist, the Presbyterian, and the Reformed Churches, and the Roman Catholics. The Minister of Home Affairs, in welcoming the conference expressed appreciation of what had been done in the past by the representatives of the different religions "to guide the minds of the people and better the moral conditions." He hoped for a continuance of such efforts in the future, and had asked for the conference in order that there might be a better understanding between the Government and religious forces as to the end to be aimed at.

King's Altar-Piece

The King has lent the celebrated altar piece of the old Trinity College Church, Edinburgh, to the Scottish National Gallery for one year. This is the finest work of art at Holyrood House. It contains the portraits of James III. and his wife, Queen Margaret (a Danish Princess), of their son (afterwards James IV.), and other personages, including St. Andrew and St. Cecilia, and one panel is devoted to a remarkable representation of the Holy Trinity. This altar piece was brought to England by James VI., and it hung for nearly a century at Hampton Court, whence it was removed by William III. to Kensington Palace. In 1836 William IV. sent the panels back to Hampton Court, and in 1851 Queen Victoria restored them to Holyrood after a separation of two centuries and a half.

Fishermen Find Balloon

While two salmon fishermen were proceeding to look at their nets at Lendalfoot, they observed a balloon about 6 feet in circumference floating in the sea a short distance from the shore. To it was attached a bamboo framework, with smaller balloons at each corner and clockwork mechanism on a centre bracket. It was found that the balloon belonged to the Meteorological Office, London, and, acting on instructions, the fishermen dispatched it to that office.

WANT TO CHANGE POSTAL SERVICE

Suggestion That It be Taken Out of Post Office and be Placed Under Permanent Chairman

Post Office has always been exceedingly good of their postal telegraph service which, they are fond of boasting, is the best in the world, but since the Government has taken over the telephones they have begun to think that there is room for improvement.

The Times now advocates the abolition of the office of Postmaster-General and the substitution of a board of directors, with a permanent chairman. A similar suggestion was made by W. H. Smith, the great news agent, in 1877. The continuity of management by practical business men is urged as essential. It is argued that the Postmaster-General cannot master the details of such a vast concern during the life of a single Government, and, moreover, regards the office merely as a stepping-stone to promotion in the Cabinet. The suggestion is that there should be a permanent chairman who would rank before all permanent secretaries of departments and all Under-Secretaries of State, with the same freedom of access to the Prime Minister as the other members of the Cabinet, and that he should be made a Privy Councillor.

With this official, as permanent colleagues, the plan is that there should be a Director of Posts and a Director of Telegraphs. These, it is proposed, shall be assisted by five business men, who should receive substantial directors' fees, and who should be summoned to fortnightly meetings. These five might be nominated by the directors of the Bank of England, a committee of Lloyd's, a committee of Chambers of Commerce and the aldermen of the City of London.

GENIUS OF A PAINTER

Da Vinci's Prayer and Triumph of Art While still a Pupil

It is told of Leonardo da Vinci that while still a pupil, before his genius burst into brilliancy, he received a special inspiration in this way:

His old and famous master because of his growing infirmities of age felt obliged to give up his own work and one day bade Da Vinci finish for him a picture which he had begun. The young man had such reverence for his master's skill that he shrank from the task. The old artist, however, would not accept any excuse, but persisted in his command, saying simply: Do your best.

Da Vinci at last tremblingly seized the brush and, kneeling before the easel, said the following prayer: It is for the sake of my beloved master that I implore skill and power for this undertaking. As he proceeded his hand grew steady, his eye awoke with slumbering genius. He forgot himself and was filled with enthusiasm for his work.

When the painting was finished the old master was carried into the studio to pass judgment on the result. His eyes rested on a triumph of art. Throwing his arms around the young artist, he exclaimed: My son, I paint no more.

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

Puff-blow are Warned Against Strong Smelling, Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids and Ammonia

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not--and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation, and causes endless trouble.

When the doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment--do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, an important physician stated that he considered a strong, penetrating pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammoniac liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment--but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

A Safe Prediction

Well, what is your opinion of the political outlook now? My opinion of it is that there is going to be a lot of useless talk before anybody is elected and that the man who is chosen will not succeed in satisfying everybody who votes for him.

CR'ED NIGHT AND DAY

Mrs. Adelaide Ouillette, St. Bruno, Que., says: "My little boy cried night and day from stomach trouble and nothing seemed to help him till I got a box of Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of other mothers have the same praise to offer not only for stomach trouble and teething troubles but for all the minor ills of little ones. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fish in the Sea of Galilee
Bible students may be interested to know that there is still good fishing in the sea of Galilee. Dr. Ernest W. Gurney Masterman, who has practiced medicine in Galilee, made a special study of fishes found there and in a recent book says that he found forty-three varieties, twice as many as can be found in the British Isles. The fishermen are taxed a fifth of the value of the fish caught, the revenue going partly to the sultan and partly to a pasha in Damascus.

Microbes in Your Scalp

Authorities say that a microbe causes baldness. If you are losing hair try our remedy at our risk.

Professor Unna, of Germany, and Dr. Sabouraud, the great French Dermatologist, claim that a microbe causes baldness, and their theory has been verified by eminent scientists. This microbe destroys the hair follicles, in time causing the scalp pores to close and the scalp to become shiny. Then, it is believed nothing will revive the growth. If treated before this occurs, baldness may be overcome.

We know of nothing that has given such universal satisfaction in treating the scalp and hair as Rezall "93" Hair Tonic. It has been designed after long study to overcome the cause of falling hair as discovered by Prof. Unna, Dr. Sabouraud and other scalp and hair specialists, and we believe it will do more than anything else can to remove dandruff and stop falling hair; and if any human agency can promote a new growth of hair it will do that, too.

We want you to make us prove it. We will pay for a month's treatment of Rezall "93" Hair Tonic used during a trial, if you will use it according to directions, and are not thoroughly satisfied. When we will do this, you surely should not hesitate to at least try it.

Start the treatment today. Your mere request will get your money back if you want it. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00.

Will Lose License Fee

The town, under the new regulations of the Alberta government, stands to lose quite a bit of revenue from hotel licenses which have heretofore been paid into the town treasury but which the government have now taken to themselves. No provision was made by the government to provide their own policeman for the keeping of law and order consequently the town has to stand the expense without any compensation. The larger cities perhaps do not feel the loss so much as the smaller towns because the small towns depend to a great extent on this revenue to pay for police protection.

Milk Record Forms

One of the interesting letters recently received by the Dairy Commissioner, Ottawa, is from a school teacher in Alberta, who asks for milk record forms and literature on the subject of Cow Testing, because some of the boys and girls in the school are starting a contest in recording the production of individual cows, to last one year.

This opens up a most promising field for every school teacher and every boy and girl in our country schools. In this we would be following somewhat slowly in the wake of many schools in the United States and New Zealand where the use of the milk tester has been taught for some time. In a dairy country like this, we should be out blazing trails for other teachers and boys to follow.

No better work could be taken up by such pupils, for any record work of that kind must infallibly lead to better conditions on dairy farms. Probably these Alberta boys and girls will soon be excellent dairymen and women, obtaining seventy five or one hundred dollars per cow. Needless to say the Dairy Division at Ottawa will be only too ready to supply blank forms and instructions in all such cases.

Geo. Cloakey Appointed Ranch Inspector

George H. Cloakey, of Oids, has received official notification of his appointment as ranch inspector of southern Alberta, and will, after the end of this month, assume his position in the Calgary office which formerly was occupied by E. E. Taylor.

The notification was received Thursday evening by Mr. Cloakey at his home in Oids in the form of a telegram from Senator Lougheed, and immediately the new incumbent took the train for Calgary, arriving there in the morning.

He is particularly well adapted to the position which he assumes at the beginning of next month, as he has practically all his life been associated with ranches and ranching, and at the present time is the owner of several farms near his home at Oids. During the building of the C. and E. line to Edmonton, Mr. Cloakey was engaged in grading for the C. and E. Land Co. which was about eight years ago, and since that time has been doing considerable inspecting for private firms, as well as attending to real estate business and the management of his own farms.

Mr. Cloakey is a man of moderate politics; a man who believes in doing the right thing to those whom he will serve irrespective of what political stripe they may wear, and in time he will prove to be the very best friend the farmer and rancher of southern has.
